

Finding your Shared Lives carer

Your key worker will look at

- your age
- your health
- your support needs
- your culture
- what you like doing
- your plans and hopes for the future
- what sort of Shared Lives family you would like to spend time with

This will help your key worker find the right carer for you.

Your key worker will give you information about your possible carer.

If you like the carer you will get to meet them in person.

Your key worker will arrange this meeting.

You can meet a Shared Lives carer:

- at their home

- or in a more comfortable place like a park or cafe

These meetings are called visits.

Visits help you decide if you want that person to be your carer.

You can have lots of visits with the carer before you decide.

You can stop visiting a carer if you want.

If your key worker cannot find the right carer for you:

- your social worker will be told
- your key worker will keep looking
